BACKGROUND AND OBJECTIVES

Commissioned by the British Council and conducted independently by Omnibus Marketing Research & Consultancies
BACKGROUND AND OBJECTIVES

- The British Council is the United Kingdom’s international organisation for cultural relations and educational opportunities. Its goal is to create connections, understanding and trust between the people of the United Kingdom and other countries. The British Council makes a positive contribution to the United Kingdom and the countries where it works through arts, culture, education and the English language.

- The objective of this report is to deliver insights on the appetite and demand for the English language among the next generation in Morocco.

- The study aims to answer the following key questions:
  - How is English perceived by young people in Morocco?
  - What is the perception and status of English in comparison to French?
  - If the favourability of English is growing among youth, why is this happening?
  - What are the needs of young people with regard to the languages they use?
  - How can the potential of English to improve the life prospects of Moroccan youth be optimized?

- Findings are based on an online survey of 1,211 persons aged 15-25 in urban areas of Morocco. Interviews were conducted between 16th and 29th March 2021.
Commissioned by the British Council and conducted independently by Omnibus Marketing Research & Consultancies
Main findings

MAIN FINDINGS AND INSIGHTS OF THE STUDY

English is growing rapidly in importance among Moroccan youth, who regard it as vital for unlocking educational, career and cultural opportunities.

- Young Moroccans believe it is more important to learn English than Arabic or French. 40% of respondents believe English is the most important language to learn, compared with only 10% for French. English is considered slightly more important to learn than Arabic, with 65% and 62% respectively believing each language is either the most important or an important one to learn.
- Young people are much more likely to recommend that their friends, family and colleagues learn English than either Arabic or French.
- The reasons why English is considered so important lie in the perception of it as a global language which is vital for education, employment, travelling, and accessing knowledge, news and culture.

Younger, wealthier and more educated youth have the strongest command of English. Online platforms and apps are becoming increasingly important platforms for language learning.

- Arabic is the dominant language among Moroccan youth, spoken and understood with high proficiency by 69% of young people. French is slightly more widely spoken than English - 34% speak and understand French with high proficiency, and 30% speak and understand English to the same level.
- Those with high levels of English proficiency tend to be younger, more educated and to have higher incomes than those with lower proficiency levels. They are also slightly more likely to be female.
- While schools, movies and TV series have hitherto been the predominant platforms for young people to learn English, in future they would prefer to learn via the internet, language apps and private language schools.
MAIN FINDINGS AND INSIGHTS OF THE STUDY

Young people most often encounter English online and in the media.
- Although English is growing in importance, French continues to have an equal influence in the daily life of young Moroccans.
- English is most often engaged with on the internet; in movies, music and TV series; and in the news and other media.
- 16% of young Moroccans use online educational platforms to access English.

English is expected to become Morocco’s primary foreign language in the next five years, as well as the foreign language most widely spoken among youth. Young people are strongly in favour of the switch from French to English, a move they see as beneficial to both the country as a whole and young people themselves.
- 85% of respondents expect the number of young Moroccans speaking English to increase in the next ten years, with 57% expecting the number to increase greatly.
- While 50% expect the use of French also to increase, only 23% expect it to increase greatly, and 21% expect it to decrease.
- More than two-thirds of young Moroccans believe English will replace French as the country’s main foreign language in the next five years. Respondents are highly supportive of such a move, with 74% agreeing with it. They believe it will benefit the country economically and provide a major boost to young people’s life and career prospects.
SWOT ANALYSIS FOR ENGLISH VERSUS ITS COMPETITORS

Main findings

Strengths

- High likelihood of recommending English compared with Arabic and French
- International/global language
- Language of knowledge, science and the future
- Leads to better job opportunities
- Important language on social media platforms

Weaknesses

- There are still people who prefer Arabic or French for cultural reasons
- A few avoid using English due to personal beliefs
- Knowledge of English is weaker among people with lower incomes and less education

Threats

- Small risk of French and Arabic regaining popularity

Opportunities

- The pandemic gives people time to learn English
- Global events make people want to understand more of the news in English
- Streaming services and social media platforms provide interesting content in English
- Apps are an increasingly popular language learning platform
RECOMMENDATIONS FOR MAINTAINING AND DEVELOPING THE PERCEPTION AND POTENTIAL OF ENGLISH BASED ON THE SWOT ANALYSIS

Main findings

Building on Strengths

- Maintain momentum by informing young people about the advantages of English for education, jobs, communication and innovation.
- Combine English language teaching with employability skills training, including use of social media for strengthening employability.

Tackling Weaknesses

- Make the argument that knowing English does not make you less Arabic or French.
- Encourage young people to think in terms of the advantages of mastering English.
- Make efforts to disseminate English language learning beyond elite groups.

Addressing Threats

- Although English has great momentum, only 30% speak and understand it with a high proficiency. Meeting the demand for English learning will ensure that they are not put off the language.

Maximizing Opportunities

- Offer more online courses during the pandemic, perhaps via an app, and advertise on social media.
- Include media and social media content in English courses, including news, movie clips and music.

PERCEPTION OF LANGUAGES – KEY FINDINGS

- 40% of respondents believe English is the most important language to learn. Another 40% regard Arabic as most important, while only 10% believe French is most important.

- Combining respondents who say that a language is either the “most important” or “important” to learn, 65% regard as English as important, 62% Arabic and 47% French.

- 82% of respondents have positive associations with English, and 59% with French.

- English is by far the highest-rated compared with Arabic and French when measuring how likely young people are to recommend it to friends, family and colleagues. The key reasons for this are that English is an international language and that it is beneficial for work.

- English and French are considered more or less equally attractive for use in day-to-day and official communication - although English is viewed as more important to learn, French is still widely used.

- The reasons why more Moroccans have learned English in recent years relate to its role as a global language and its importance for obtaining employment, travelling around the world, and accessing knowledge and culture. The COVID-19 pandemic and other international events have also contributed to increased interest in the language.

You must learn English because it is important in our lives now.

Perception of languages

Because the Arabic language has an important future.

Because the English language has become more important in the light of globalization, as most of the world's population speaks it, not to mention its importance in communication in various fields from commercial exchanges to politics and public relations.

English has become one of the most widely spoken languages in the world, and it's the language of business.

In fact, I find that the English language enables access to many jobs and is currently controlling the global economy.

Because I don't use English in my life.

English has become one of the most widely spoken languages in the world, and it's the language of business.

I'm an engineering student, technicalities and standards are changing every year. This change involves all countries around the world. Most of these countries don't speak French. But English became the world universal language. To get those updates, it's easy and very likely I will find them in English!

Languages are very important to know firstly it is a way to communicate and secondly for it is one of the keys to succeed in the professional world.

In fact, I find that the English language enables access to many jobs and is currently controlling the global economy.

We are a Franco-Arab country so there aren't too many people who practice the English language.

You must learn English because it is important in our lives now.

Because my language is Arabic and 2nd language is French.

Because I love the English language.

Because my ratings are based on which language would be more recommendable to learn and be able to grow in this society.

Because Arabic is the best language.

Because the French language greatly affects our society.

Many respondents learn English by being active on social media platforms. This is not only by following celebrities who speak English, but also by meeting other people online and discussing different topics of interest.

Some mention having met people online during the COVID-19 pandemic as the reason for making an effort to master English at a better level.

Movies, series and online gaming are also of great significance for learning English.

During the pandemic, young people have used the opportunity of having more spare time to access learning platforms and take courses, including for improving English skills.

English and French have an equally strong influence on the daily life of Moroccan youth.

Young Moroccans encounter English in their daily life via many different platforms, but the two most significant are via the internet and via movies, music and series. These are also the two platforms where the Moroccan youth most actively seek to engage with English.

The internet sites and social media platforms most often used in English are Facebook, Instagram and YouTube, followed by educational platforms.

Moroccan youth mainly watch movies and series in English on Netflix, with MBC and YouTube used to a much lesser extent for this purpose.

FUTURE LANGUAGE PREFERENCES

Commissioned by the British Council and conducted independently by Omnibus Marketing Research & Consultancies
85% of respondents expect the number of young Moroccans speaking English to increase in the next ten years, with 57% expecting the number to increase greatly.

While 50% expect the use of French also to increase, only 23% expect it to increase greatly, and 21% expect it to decrease.

The main reasons Moroccan young people expect English to become more widely spoken are that it is seen as the language of the future, as an international language, and as positive for one’s career.

There is strong agreement among young Moroccans that English should become the primary second language in the country. 74% agree that Morocco should adopt English instead of French as its primary second language.

Such a move, respondents believe, will enhance tourism to Morocco, enhance the country’s status as a business hub and gateway to Africa, and strengthen its profile as a research and innovation hub. From a personal point of view, moreover, respondents believe a stronger focus on English will enable them to access high-quality educational opportunities, obtain better jobs both locally and internationally, and earn higher salaries.

More than two-thirds believe English will replace French as the primary foreign language within five years.
85% expect the number of Moroccans speaking English to increase the next 10 years. 50% expect the number speaking French to increase, and 21% expect it to decrease.
The key reasons for expecting more Moroccans to speak English that it is perceived as the language of the future, as an international language, and as beneficial for one’s career.

"The next 10 years will require more English speakers."

"Because English is the language of the future."
REPLACING FRENCH WITH ENGLISH AS MOROCCO’S PRIMARY SECOND LANGUAGE IS SEEN AS OFFERING GREAT BENEFITS BOTH TO THE COUNTRY AS A WHOLE AND TO YOUNG PEOPLE THEMSELVES. RESPONDENTS BELIEVE THE COUNTRY WILL BENEFIT ECONOMICALLY AND WITH REGARD TO RESEARCH AND INNOVATION, WHILE THEY THEMSELVES WILL BENEFIT WITH REGARD TO EDUCATION AND WORK
ENGLISH IS ALSO SEEN AS BENEFICIAL IN TERMS OF HELPING YOUNG PEOPLE TO TAKE UP EDUCATION AND CAREER OPPORTUNITIES ABROAD. THERE IS STRONG AGREEMENT THAT IT SHOULD BECOME THE COUNTRY’S MAIN SECOND LANGUAGE.

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

On behalf of the British Council, Omnibus has conducted a quantitative research project to provide an evaluation and insights into the shift towards English among Moroccan youth aged 15 to 25.

Using a 15-minute questionnaire, Omnibus interviewed 1,211 persons via online panels. Interviews were conducted between 16th and 29th March 2021.

The interviews were conducted with a representative sample of persons aged 15 to 25 living in urban areas of Morocco, with a good spread across the major cities.

The sample of 1,211 persons has a statistical uncertainty of +/- 2.82%-points based on a 95% confidence level.
